

3. What perspective on our trials enables us to rejoice in them?

4. The description in v15 is strange, for we can hardly assume that Peter's readers would want to be murderers or thieves or criminals. What do you think Peter's point is in this statement? What is meant by a "meddler"?

5. What is Peter's point in highlighting God's judgement here?

6. Instead of turning away from God or turning inward when suffering trials, what should we continue to do? Why might this be?
